In such cases it is both a food which is immediately available to the tissues, and a mild and harmless stimulant to digestion. Light clarets, Rhine wines, or even Burgundy, often may be advantageously permitted with midday and evening meals. Distilled liquors have a much narrower field of usefulness in the dietetics of tuberculosis, but are permissible in certain cases, when alcohol is indicated, and the more bulky forms are ill borne. When they are used, they should be well diluted. The standard food requirements for tuberculous invalids must be determined by further thorough studies of metabolism. Having acquired more accurate data, it will be possible to meet the food requirements, and at the same time to avoid the dangerous error of over-feeding. G. E. CLIMATOTHERAPY The Fresh Air Treatment of Acute Anders, The Medical Record, July 7, Respiratory Diseases with Special 1906.) Anders is altogether comReference to Pneumonia. (J. M. mitted to the admission of pure out side air in abundance to the sickrooms of persons suffering from the various forms of acute respiratory disease. It required a long time for the profession to learn the great value of an out-door existence in the treatment of tuberculosis, but its value has finally been recognized. To be effective (in tuberculosis) pure air must be constantly applied, without regard to the seasons of the year or the periods of the day, although a certain degree of protection can and should be afforded during...
